SITUATION SUMMARY

Civil Unrest, Salinas, Monterey County

Monterey County Sheriff's Department Chief Deputy Monarch advised that Wednesday's unrest was handled with sufficient law enforcement resources from within Monterey County. Chief Deputy Monarch advised they are preparing for a major protest demonstration in Salinas this Sunday, 5/25/2014. Monterey County Sheriff has not given any projected numbers and is coordinating with the Salinas Police Department in preparing a threat assessment. The protest is in demonstration against the recent Police-involved shootings that have occurred over the past weeks. Monterey County Sheriff has not requested any Law Enforcement Mutual Aid at this time. Cal OES LEB Region-2 A/C Smith is coordinating with Monterey County and Region-2 RMAC, Alameda County.

Healthcare Center Evacuated City of Davis, Yolo County

A small fire caused the evacuation of a nursing facility in Davis, Yolo County. The California Department of Public Health Duty Officer reports all residents are evacuated and the scene is clear as of 2341 hours on Thursday.

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

- SOC / Inland REOC remains activated in support of 2014 Drought

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

Weak high pressure over the North Coast tonight will bring patchy fog and some localized drizzle through sunrise. A weak short wave crossing on Friday is forecast to bring a slight cooling to Northwest California and atmospheric instability. There is a slight chance of thunderstorms over the interior mountains Friday afternoon and early evening in association with passage of the short wave.

San Francisco Weather:

An upper level ridge will build through this weekend. Warmer temperatures can be expected inland, but night and morning low clouds with patchy fog can be expected along the coast for the next several nights. Temperatures will cool to near normal early next week.

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY

Sacramento Weather:

A weak low pressure area will move into the Pacific Northwest today bringing a slight chance of showers and thunderstorms to the southern Cascades. Otherwise, conditions will be dry and a little warmer.

Hanford Weather:

There will be just a slight chance for showers over the Sierra through the weekend as a low pressure system pulls slowly away. Otherwise dry and warming over Central California through the Memorial Day weekend as a high pressure ridge builds in.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

High pressure will gradually build through the weekend. This will bring a warming trend to the area, although night and morning stratus will continue to impact the coastal areas. For early next week, a trough will develop along the West Coast bringing cooler conditions and a continuation of the coastal stratus and fog.

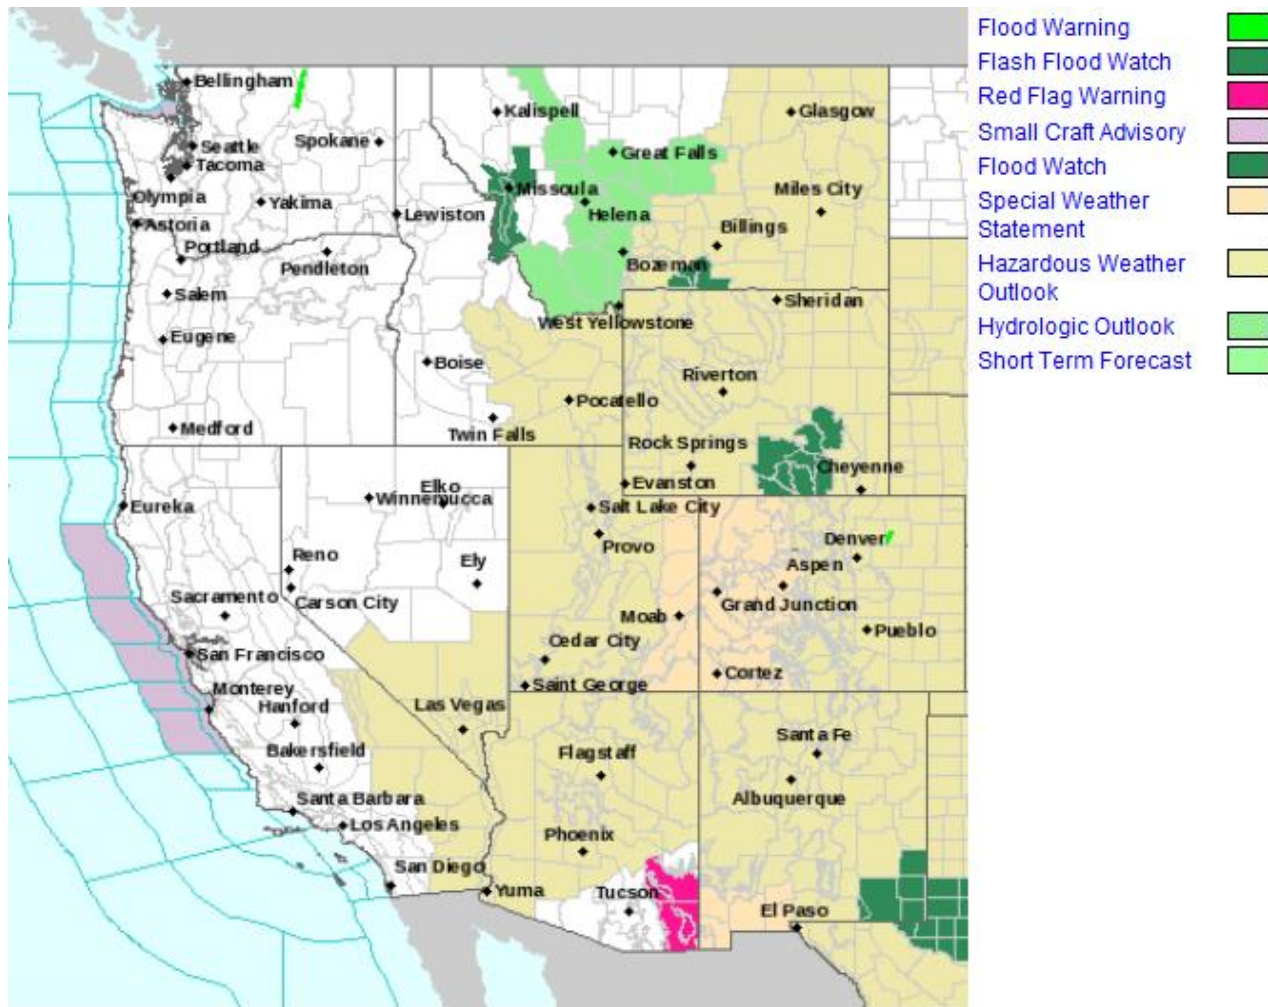

Extreme Southwestern California Including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

Low pressure aloft will continue the chance of scattered showers over the mountains and deserts this afternoon. Isolated thunderstorms are possible as well. Dry and warmer weather will then develop over the holiday weekend as high pressure builds aloft and the marine layer thins back to the coast. Areas of low clouds and fog are likely each night and morning becoming mostly sunny for the afternoons. Cooler temperatures will present again for the latter half of the week as a low pressure trough redevelops along the West Coast.

Southeast California Weather:

Slight chances for showers and thunderstorms will persist in the Mojave Desert and southern Great Basin. Temperatures will warm a few degrees each day, reaching well above normal by Memorial Day.

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

Situational Summary

On January 17, 2014 Governor Edmund G. Brown proclaimed a State of Emergency and directed state officials to take all necessary actions to prepare for drought conditions. The State Operation Center (SOC) is activated to implement objectives in support of the Governor's priorities. The lack of winter rain and snowfall has resulted in extremely dry conditions in many parts of the State. Reservoir levels are down significantly from where they should be on average for this time of year. If conditions continue without substantial rainfall, severe impacts to municipal water supplies, agriculture (plants and livestock) and firefighting capabilities are likely in store for the State over the next few months. Negative economic impacts will also result.

*As our state's rainy season comes to an end, it is highly unlikely that precipitation totals will increase significantly. This winter's below average rain and snowfall worsens conditions in this third straight dry year.

The drought could result in severe impacts to the municipal water supplies, wells, agriculture (plants and livestock) and firefighting capabilities for several months. The SOC continues to be activated to monitor the situation statewide, and support regional and local operational areas.

- The Taskforce continues to meet regularly to take actions that conserve water and coordinate state response to the drought.
- The final manual snowpack survey of the season was conducted on Thursday (May 1) and showed California snowpack at 18% of normal.
- DWR has announced that water essential for health and safety will be delivered through the state water project. The current State Water Project Allocation is 5%.
- Cal OES continues to gather drought-related costs from state agencies and local governments.
